Reid Oval

Warrnambool's premier sporting facility

The turf installation at Reid Oval is expected to be finalised on March 11.

This is several days later than originally planned with weather and COVID-19 restrictions causing a delay to the harvest and transport of the turf from South Australia.

In the meantime the sand base has been spread around the oval surface in readiness for the Santa Ana Couch turf installation.

The concrete foundation for the perimeter is close to complete and further work has been done on the walls of the pavilion.

The aerial image above shows the sand being spread across the oval. The lines underneath the sand comprise the extensive network of slotted drainage pipes that will help the oval remain playable at the height of a South West winter.
